Hooks for Essays to Improve Your Writing

There is no better way to engage the readers in your story than appealing to a working writing technique. Hooks for essays serve as that magnet that attracts the attention of the audience and makes them want to keep reading.

There is a massive collection of articles and study guides that provide you with all the possible information on the topic. The biggest disadvantage they have is the lack of examples. It is easy to give some tips on starting an essay with a first-person story.

But how a student is supposed to know what is the best way to present that personal narrative? We'll try to give you some practical tips with real examples in this article.

Problem of Excessive Information

The abundance of information available to us everywhere in the world of the 21st century can be not only beneficial but rather confusing. It helps people a lot in finding the facts they need but also floods their minds with unnecessary data.

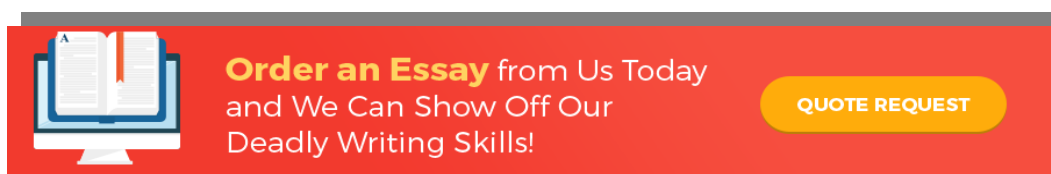

The ability to filter the information that surrounds us is an important skill nowadays. This is why it is a right decision to stop reading the article or book you don't like. You can definitely spend it more effectively reading something exciting.

Every modern author fights for the attention of readers and tries to come up with an interesting and non-trivial approach to writing. College is the best time for experimenting with your writing style and discovering your own voice. Hooks for essays are a great mean of letting the readers know that this particular story is worth their time.

Which Hook to Choose

The type of an essay hook you use depends on the kind of essay you are writing. The only thing you need to remember is that the option you choose should be relevant and appropriate. For instance, if you are writing about the tragedy of the World War I, including an anecdote in the introduction might be not the best idea. Make the hook look natural in the context. Don't use any hook just for the sake of it.

Focus on the thesis statement. There has to be a smooth transition from the hook you choose to it. Your audience has to have a clear understanding of what the text is going to be about and make the decision whether to keep reading it or not.

Beginning an essay with an effective Hook is absolutely essential! The hook is what inspires the reader to continue on and really 'want' to read the paper. There are many different methods for writing effective, engaging, and interesting hooks. Regardless of the chosen method, the hook must ALWAYS lead into the THESIS. The average length of a hook should be 3-7 sentences (depending on the topic of the paper, and the method that is chosen)

OPEN WITH A SERIES OF QUESTIONS	Have you ever wondered how you'd survive if you found yourself alone in the wilderness? Would you know how to create your own shelter? Find edible food or clean drinking water? Would you know how to track where you are going and where you have been?
OPEN WITH AN ANNOUNCEMENT	Caution! This is not a cookbook for the gourmet. You will find nothing fancy and exotic when you open this cover. These recipes are strictly for the cook on a tight budget.
OPEN WITH A BOLD AND CHALLENGING STATEMENT	Contrary to what many people think, most learning takes place after that final bell rings at 2:30 and students head out to meet their busses. Most learning takes place outside of school.
OPEN WITH A QUOTATION FROM SOMEBODY	I could still hear the nagging voice that told me, "You're going to regret this." That's what my best friend Liza said as I got on the roller coaster, without thinking about my low tolerance for extreme motions.
OPEN WITH A RIDDLE OR PUZZLE	What textbook has no pages, is miles wide, smells like a creek and has been around for millions of years? That's right-Outdoor School.
OPEN WITH A PERSONAL EXPERIENCE	I'm still glad I didn't cry at the funeral, although I did in my room later.
OPEN WITH HOW YOU FELT	My hands were sweaty! My teeth wouldn't quit chattering. Prickly fingers ran up my spine. What would happen next?
GIVE SOME BACKGROUND INFORMATION	I come from a family of six kids. In comparison to some, this is not many; but to most, six kids is an awful lot! As the middle child, and oldest girl, I was often responsible for my younger siblings. It is because of this, that to do this day, I feel incredibly over-protective of my siblings.
